Illinois Highway Department Receives Proposals For The Work

Springfield, Ill., June 28—(AP)—The state Division of Highways today received bids for resurfacing of 5.47 miles of highways, involving the expenditure of approximately $88,000 for labor and materials.

Apparent low bidders were:

Route 6, Lee county, 1.34 miles resurfacing west of Dixon, Chicago Construction Co., Chicago, $12,762.

Route 6, Lee county, .44 mile resurfacing west of Dixon, Chicago Construction Co. Chicago, $3,166.40.

Route 6, Whiteside county, .98 miles resurfacing in Sterling, C. F. Settle, Moline, $16,341.45.

All of the projects except the last named, come under the jurisdiction of the Dixon office of the state Highway Department. The two projects named west of Dixon on the Lincoln Highway provide for the resurfacing of the present brick paving with a bituminous substance, very similar to that applied last fall east of Dixon on route 6. The work has been divided into two projects which provide for the resurfacing of the highway from the city limits at the Illinois Central viaduct, west to the present cement paving at the Hill Den farms.

One project provides for the resurfacing from the viaduct to the top of Lord's Hill, the second from that point west to the present cement paving.

The Whiteside county project pertains to the resurfacing of the streets over which the Lincoln Highway is routed in Sterling.

REQUIREMENTS FOR RELIEF IN STATE ARE OFF

Definite Decrease In Downstate Illinois Is Reported

Chicago, June 28 —(AP)— Requirements for relief in downstate Illinois counties have begun to decrease definitely, Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission, announced today.

The commission reported a drop of 6 per cent in the relief rolls from May to June and estimated a drop of 8 per cent more from June to July.

"According to estimates by the commission," said Reynolds, "101,068 families are on the relief rolls in 56 downstate Illinois counties. During May, our estimates show, there were 107,233 families receiving relief in these counties. Estimates for July indicate the combined case load for these counties will be 93,765 families.

"The majority of the counties covered by this study show decreases in their estimated case loads for May. The few counties in which an increase in the case load is expected are in the southern part of Illinois, where coal mining is a major industry."

Pessimistic Crop Report Is Issued

Springfield, Ill., June 28—(AP)—All small grains were damaged and farm work generally was delayed by the heat and general drought during the week ending yesterday in Illinois, the Weather Bureau crop report said today. Light showers did little to relieve the general high temperatures.

"Oats continue very poor," said W. F. Feldwish, Federal meteorologist. "Corn fields are well cultivated and clean; early planted corn continued to make good progress while later planted fields are uneven and have germinated poorly. Planting is still in progress in bottom lands of southern counties.

"Winter wheat harvest has progressed northward into the central counties. Pastures are badly dried up and alfalfa is making little progress since the first cutting. Cotton looks fine in the extreme south but is small and growing slowly."

Detective Fired From The Force

Chicago—The discharge of Detective Harry Miller from the police force was ordered by the Civil Service Commission after a hearing growing out of the shooting last winter of Frank Nitti, Capone gangster, by a fellow officer, Detective Harry Lang. Miller was accused of making a false report of the shooting which finally led to Lang being charged with assault against Nitti.

The total front in the World War was approximately 400 miles long; American troops held about 25 per cent of it.

BODIES OF TWO SPANISH FLIERS ARE NOT FOUND

Story of Their Discovery In Wreck Of Plane A Hoax

Mexico City, June 28—(AP)—The search for two Spanisr trans-Atlantic airmen, lost while flying from Havana toward Mexico, was resumed today after the latest report that they were found had been proved a hoax.

The search was started again on orders from the office of the President.

The Spanish Ambassador established that there was no truth in the report that the fliers, Captain Mariano Barberan and Lieutenant Joaquin Collar, had been found dead in the wreckage of their plane near the Machoma lagoon in the state of Tabasco.

The Ambassador, Julio Alvarez del Vayo, established this after interviewing Manual Balcazar, who reputedly found the wrecked plane. He saw Balcazar at Minatitlan, Vera Cruz.

He informed his embassy that Balcazar could not substantiate the story. It was reported Balcazar asserted he had merely repeated stories he had heard and that he never had said he himself had discovered the plane.

FILIBUSTER IN HOUSE THREAT TO MANY BILLS

Rockford Republican Retaliates On An Alleged Senate Bloc

Springfield, Ill., June 28—(AP)—Filibuster tactics threatened legislation in both houses today as an aftermath of the bitter battles over the sales tax.

Reading in full of Senate bills before the House was required by Rep. LeRoy M. Green, Rockford Republican, who led the unsuccessful House fight against the sales tax.

By dilatory tactics, Green sought to prevent passage of bills sponsored by Senators who voted for the sales tax. This was to retaliate against members of the upper house who, he charged, had conspired to block legislation sponsored by Green and others who fought the revenue bill.

If the filibuster persists, a severe jam will result in the death on the already crowded calendars of dozens of bills.

Green's action was directed mainly at Richey V. Graham of Cicera, president pro tem of the Senate, who denied that a caucus agreement had been reached to block House bills by sales tax foes. A Green bill barely survived opposition by Democratic Senators late yesterday.

Graham denied that the Senate was trying to blockade some of the House measures.

Pennsylvania Company's Flag, Lost On Battlefield In France, Found By Dixon Soldier, Returned To Its Place

Walt. Fallstrom Took Company Banner To Grove City, Pa.

Walter Fallstrom of this city returned home last night from Grove City, Pa. where he went on a double mission, with his wife and daughter. He left Mrs. Fallstrom and daughter in the east for a visit with relatives and then proceeded to Grove City where he was the guest of honor of the American Legion post and officers of Headquarters Company, 112th Infantry, Pennsylvania National Guard. At a special meeting of the Legion Post of Grove City Monday evening Mr. Fallstrom, a World War veteran, presented to Captain Poehlman, commanding officer in charge of the headquarters infantry company of that city, a company standard to which a great deal of history is attached.

While serving with the American forces in France the Dixon man, who was assigned as a truck driver, was engaged in salvage operation in the Belleau Wood sector, one of the many scenes of heavy fighting. About three miles from Belleau Wood and along the bank of a creek he found the standard of a unit which had seen action in the drive. This was on August 1, 1918. He investigated and found that the standard bore letters and figures which indicated that it had belonged to Company M of the 16th Pennsylvania National Guard, which during the war became a part of the 112th infantry. He removed the flag, which was of a blue background upon which the company's identification was placed in white letters and figures and kept it among his possessions. At the close of the war, he was sent to Germany with the Army of Occupation and returned finally to Dixon, still possessing the banner.

Located Company

It was his intention at the time he picked up the flag to retain it and at some time to return it to its original unit. During the past two months, through the American Legion magazine, he succeeded in locating the Pennsylvania company and finally was invited to come to Grove City and present the standard to the company to be preserved among its other World War trophies. This was done at a special meeting of the Legion post with officers of the company Monday evening.

Captain McCoy, who commanded the Grove City company when it was inducted into service, had not seen the standard from the time his company left home for a concentration camp until last Monday evening. It was then supposed to have been lost before the company sailed for France and was no part of their equipment while in the service. The surprise of the Grove City National Guard officers was equal to that of Mr. Fallstrom, in receiving the company standard which had been carried before the company was inducted into service and had been apparently lost.

The Grove City company engaged in the Belleau Wood battles and suffered heavy losses in and near that important sector during the World War. It is believed that some member of the company who had carried the company standard with him from the concentration camp to the scene of battle, hoisted it on a staff as the unit went into action and it was left near the bank of the creek to designate the spot where the company suffered heavy losses at the hands of the enemy.

Evaporated Milk Industry Will Be Next To See "Doc"

Washington, June 28—(AP)—The evaporated milk industry tomorrow becomes the next branch of agriculture to step into the "doctor's" office at farm relief administration headquarters for a dose of depression tonic.

Proposed marketing agreement provisions submitted by representatives of the industry in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin—the important midwestern dairying states—set up for these states an individual formula by which minimum milk prices to producers are fixed.

Formulas for minimum-price fixing recognize the wholesale butter prices in the principal major markets, the price schedule varying by states and formulas by regions.

Truck Driver Fell Asleep: Is Killed

Pekin, Ill., June 28—(AP)— Apparently asleep at the wheel of a three-ton truck, Jim Vezina of Chicago was killed this morning when it struck a telephone pole four miles south of here. A reserve driver who was making the trip with him from Alton to Green Bay, Wis., was unhurt.

Returns Flag Lost In Battle

Walter Fallstrom, Dixon World War veteran, this week returned to its original owners, a Pennsylvania National Guard Company, the flag he is shown holding, a banner which he found on the Belleau Wood battlefield in France during the war. The flag had been lost there by the unit, which suffered heavy losses in the Belleau Wood engagements.

EXPECTED DROP IN GRAIN PRICE OCCURRED TODAY

Huge Sales To Collect Profits Featured Day's Trading

Chicago, June 28—(AP)—Characterized by violent fluctuating, the expected break in grain values materialized today. Prices plunged downward with wheat off as much as seven cents a bushel at the opening with other grainds showing losses of around five cents. Reactions carried wheat prices up between four and six cents, but these failed to hold and the close was sharply lower. Huge sales to collect profits which found few buyers in the pits were said to have caused the initial break. The close in wheat was near the day's bottom prices.

Dollar wheat went by the boards in the last few minutes of the session. The May delivery had held around the dollar mark or above almost all day, but dropped to 99¼ cents just before the close and finished there. December wheat, which touched a dollar during the day, dropped back to 95⅛ at the close. The finish was as much as six cents a bushel lower than yesterday.

Other Grains Followed.

All other grains rose and fell with wheat. Corn closed 4⅜ down with the December at 60¾. Oats were four cents off with December at 43¾. The December delivery of rye dropped to 81¾ and the same option in barley to 57.

Speculators swarmed into the pits in a hurry this morning, all with the same general idea—to sell wheat for the profits that might be obtained. Buyers were few and far between.

Despite the disastrous break at the start, buying soon became general with the volume of trade at a pace almost equal to that of the last few days. However, with reports of some rains in the west, the buyers were more cautious and support slackened with the result that the close was weak and slow.

Author Volstead Act Lost Position

St. Paul, Minn., June 28—(AP)—Andrew J. Volstead, co-author of the prohibition enforcement act bearing his name, lost his job today as legal adviser to the Eighth District Dry Administrator.

He was indefinitely furloughed, effective July 1, along with the District Administrator, Robert D. Ford, and six state deputy administrators. The federal economy axe fell also on many other enforcement employes in the district.

"IMPRACTICAL" FOR HAWKS TO HUNT MATTERN

Thats What Texas Co. Hawk's Employer, Says Of Plan

New York, June 28 —(AP)—Chicago representatives of Jimmie Mattern, missing round the world flier, were informed by telegraph today that it would be "impracticable" for Frank Hawks, speed flier to assist in the search for him at this time.

The telegram was sent to Jack Clark, one of the Mattern representatives who yesterday appealed for Hawks' help in searching for the missing flier. It was signed by W. S. Rodgers, president of the Texas Company, for which Hawks is technical advisor and without authorization of which he is not free to act in such a matter.

The telegram follows:

"Referring to telegram 27 (June 27) signed by Messrs. Jameson, Mills, Sackett (Mattern backers who joined in the appeal) and yourself. We sincerely regret Mr. Mattern's misfortune and would like very much to have Commander Hawks assist in the hunt for him.

"However, after serious consideration we feel that due to the fact that Commander Hawks' plane and his equipment are still in an experimental stage any attempt on his part at this time would be impracticable."

Hawks himself made no statement concerning the matter.

ONE-THIRD OF NEEDED STATES FOR REPEAL

West Virginia, Border State, Was Wet For Twenty Years

BULLETIN

Charleston, W. Va., June 28 —(AP)—With only 61 scattered precincts missing, West Virginia has given a majority of 82,211 for repeal of the eighteenth amendment The vote in 2,277 of the 2,338 precincts for repeal, 216,840; against, 134,619.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

One third of the 48 states have now voted to strike the 18th Amendment from the constitution.

West Virginia and California made the score 16 to 0 in favor of repeal when their voters returned majorities yesterday for the 21st Amendment, which aims to delete the 18th.

In West Virginia, a border state which had been dry for 20 years, the margin of the repeal victory was about 79,000 with approximately three-quarters of the ballots counted.

California, which had wiped its own prohibition law from the books last year, was giving repeal a lead of about 3 to 1 as tabulations poured in today.

Repealists must win 20 more states to delete prohibition from the Constitution.

The states which have voted to ratify, besides West Virginia and California, are: New York, Indiana, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin, Rhode Island, Wyomng, New Jersey, Delaware, Nevada, Illinois, and Massachusetts.

CALIFORNIA IN LINE

San Francisco, June 28—(AP)—California, land of wine grapes, was in line with 15 other states favoring repeal of the eighteenth amendment today by a vote holding steadily at more than three to one.

From San Francisco, where the balloting in yesterday's special election was 16 to 1 for repeal, across the northern counties and into the one-time dry stronghold of the south, the wet tide surged.

Returns from 6,312 precincts out of 9,347 showed: for repeal 718,723 against 243,083.

Even the two southern counties of Orange and Riverside, which refused to join the other 56 in discarding the state prohibition law last November, were on the verge of swinging over into the wet column.

In southern California generally the vote in favor of repeal was nearly three to one.

The voters also favored a proposal to legalize pari-mutuel betting on horse racing with only San Diego county, just across the border from the Agua Caliente track, remaining doubtful. The count on the proposition in 5,448 complete precincts out of 9,347 was for 443,359; against 243,598.

DRY BULWARK UPSET

Charleston, W. Va., June 28—(AP)—Upsetting one of the remaining bulwarks of dry hopes, West Virginia has become one of 16 in the roll of states to vote repeal of prohibition.

With nearly three-fourths of the vote tallied the first of the Dixie states to take a stand on the 21st amendment rolled up a lead of 78,368 for the wets before election officials closed up their offices and went to bed.

With 1,710 out of 2,336 precincts reported, the last available count stood 185,344 for repeal and 106,936 against. An exceptionally light vote was recorded and apathy was apparent in the mountain counties and farm sections.

In the Pocatagligo district of Kanawha county election officials closed up at noon without registering a single vote.

In the northern panhandle section and areas holding steel plants glass factories and other industries

Horner Signed His Sales Tax Act Today; Effective On Saturday; Regulations Are Being Written

Springfield, Ill., June 28—(AP)—Govenor Horner today signed his two percent sales tax bill, the last step necessary to put the tax law into effect on Saturday.

The Governor also is expected to sign not later than tomorrow, the companion bills providing that revenues from the sales tax should be turned over to the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission for taking care of the jobless and destitute during the last half of 1933 and then be diverted to abatement of the state property tax during the rest of the biennium.

Regulations for enforcement and collection of the levy of two percent on retailers are being drafted by the state Finance Department, which will administer the new law.

Compiling of regulations is expected to be completed tomorrow night and they will be announced at the first opportunity, departmental officials said.

Attorney General Otto Kerner, who drafted the new sales tax plan, submitted to Horner a formal opinion upholding its constitutionality.

Former Policeman's Second Shot At Business Rival Within Year Resulted In "Getting His Man"

Collinsville, Ill., June 28—(AP)—Half an hour after his bar had been riddled by machine gun fire last night, Louis Colone, recently ousted policeman and stormy figure in Collinsville politics, shot and killed a rival bar proprietor he and a state patrolman were questioning.

Colone said he fired when the patrolman, George Kuelks, had turned his head for a moment, and the man they were questioning, reached for a pistol. The slain man was Dan Maddalino, 38.

The machine gun attack was made on Colone's bar at midnight last night. Colone, who was ousted from the police force by the city council last Friday, summoned the patrolman and told him Maddalino and two other men were walking up and down in front of his place all day and several times last night.

The officer and Colone questioned Maddalino at his home in which they found three revolvers, two pistols, a sawed-off shotgun, two rifles and a quantity of ammunition.

As they searched, Colone said, Maddalino reached for a revolver while Kuelks wasn't looking, and Colone shot him twice.

Last night was the second time Colone shot Maddalino. In 1932 he attempted to arrest Maddalino, who, he reported, resisted and Colone shot and wounded him slightly.

Spring Pig Crop Slightly Larger

Washington, June 28—(AP)—The Department of Agriculture today reported an increase of three per cent in the spring pig crop of this year over 1932 and a prospective increase of eight per cent in the number of sows to farrow this fall compared with the 1932 fall season.

Based on a survey of 158,000 farms conducted by rural mail carriers, the report estimated that the number of pigs saved in the spring season from last December 1 to June 1, aggregated 51,030,000 for the nation, an increase of 1,400,000 over 1932.

In the corn belt, the number saved was estimated at 40,940,000 head, an increase of about 4 per cent over last year for the area.

Two reasons account for the increase. About half is due to the increase in the number of sows farrowing, the other half due to an increase in the average number of pigs saved per litter.

Alibi Defense For Alleged Robber

Springfield, Ill., June 28—(AP)—Nine persons from St. Paul, Minn., testified at an extradition hearing here today that they had seen or talked with Sam Taran on April 4, when he is alleged to have robbed the First National Bank at Fairbury, Neb., of $150,000 in cash and securities.

The witnesses said Taran, who was arrested in Chicago and is free on bonds, was at his office as head of the Utility Finance Company in St. Paul the day of the robbery.

Homer S. Yeakle, an insurance solicitor, postitively identified Taran as the bank robber. R. S. Wisley, cashier of the bank, was unable to make positive identification. Pete Johnson was the other prosecuting witness.

NATION'S BREAD BILL TO BE 150 MILLIONS HIGHER

The Government Tax On Wheat Effective July 8th

Washington, June 28—(AP)—The bread bill of United States consumers will be increased potentialy $150,000,000 for the twelve months starting at midnight July 8.

On each bushel of wheat ground into flour after that date a processing tax of 30 cents will be levied, to provide funds with which to pay cash benefits to farmers who agree to reduce their acreage for harvest in 1934 and 1935.

Approved by President Roosevelt, a formal order proclaiming the tax was issued late yesterday by R. G. Tugwell, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, in the absence of Secretary Wallace, who is in the middle west.

A maximum processing tax on cotton will be put into effect on August 1, the exact amount to be announced later. It is expected to be about four cents a pound.

To Reduce Crops

It will be used to provide funds to finance a program of reducing this year's cotton crop. A campaign is being conducted through the south this week to win agreements from growers to plow up from 25 to 50 per cent of their growing fields.

If the wheat tax is passed on to consumers in exact ratio to the per bushel rate this is what it will do:

Increase the cost of a one-pound loaf of bread .483 of a cent; a pound of oridnary flour, .704 of a cent; of whole wheat and graham flour .500 of a cent; of pancake flour .493.

For a 198-pound barrell of flour the tax will amount to $1.38. The order sets up conversion factors as a basis on which to tax flour held by millers and wholesalers or in the stage of proessing and these stocks will be taxed on a basis of 4.6 bushels of wheat equaling one barrel of flour.

the wet tide rolled up strongest.

Drys' Hopes Dashed

The drys had pinned hopes on West Virginia because of its southern traditions and because of the handsome 92,000 majority for prohibition on the state amendment in 1912.

The wets were quick to point that the West Virginia vote will lead the way to repeal in the states south of the Mason-Dixon line.

Patrick D. Koontz, chairman of the United Repeal Council of West Virginia said that "there has been no doubt of the outcome almost from the beginning.

"It is significant that the southern counties are strongly in the repeal column. Bordering Tennessee, Virginia and Kentucky, there is little difference in the thoughts and actions of these West Virginia voters from those of their neighbors across the state lines."

A Few More Like Him Might Help

Springfield, Ill., June 28—(AP)—Rodman E. Grigsby, Blaninsville Democrat, who is serving his first term in the House of Representatives, seldom misses a roll call but has not introduced a bill, made a speech or explained his vote on a single occasion during the six months he has sat in the House.

Many other members who have not made a speech, either during debate or during roll call, have introduced bills. Others have participated either in debate or made speeches in explanation of their votes. But Grigsby has nearly a 100 per cent record in attendance and there are few bills on which he has not cast his vote.

French Continue Stabilization Fight

London, June 28—(AP)—High French sources said tonight that the world economic conference steering committe had approved a resolution asserting that whether the parley succeeds or fails in the economic phase of its labors depends on currency stabilization. The Americans failed to participate in this resolution.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

TROOP 89 MET

Boy Scout troop No. 89 held its regular meeting last evening at the Christian Church with their Scout master, Kenneth Abbott in charge. A descriptive story was given to the Scouts of Camp Pinehurst, a tract of land comprising 110 acres of wood and clearings with a brook running through the property. The swimming pool, 100 feet long and 25 feet wide was formed by constructing a dam at its lower end and makes a convenient spot for water activity. To date, ten boys have signed up for the week's camp beginning on July 8. It is believed because of the low cost, fully 20 Scouts will take advantage of the outing.

Chicago—Raymond Walsh learned to his regret that the police can't be fooled all the time. Testify Attorney Knew Guilty Men In Rockford Case

Rockford, Ill., June 28—(AP)—Two witnesses took the stand for Henry T. Olson in the Circuit Court hearing of his $50,000 damage suit against his former attorney, Harry B. North, and testified to having heard North say he knew who the guilty men were in a murder for which Olson was convicted.

The testimony was given by Walker A. Medaris, former president of the Illinois Izaak Walton League, and John A. Logan Wairen, a former pastor.

SEVERE CROP DAMAGE

Washington, June 28— (AP) — The Weather Bureau in its weekly report today said severe damage had been done to small grains in the wheat belt by hot dry weather with marked deterioration in the northwestern part of the belt.

In the eastern part of the corn belt the crop was benentted locally by showers but good rains are still needed quite generally over the principal producing area the report said.

The bureau said weather has favored harvesting and threshing of small grains with most of the crop cut in Missouri and Eastern Kansas and threshing progressing rapidly in Oklahoma.

In the spring wheat region there was severe damage in the Dakotas and Montana while in eastern sections progress was poor to only fair.

Electric Power Output Growing

New York, June 28—(AP) —The expansion in electric power output continued last week with a gain of 10.9 per cent over the outturn of the same week last year. This stands as the largest of eight consecutive upturns since early in May.

Production for the week, according to the Edison Electric Institute, was 1,598,136,000 kilowatt hours compared with 1,578,101,000 in the preceding week and 1,440,541,000 in the like 1932 period.

Last week's gain continued the contra-seasonal trend and carried output to the highest for any week since the period ended January 23, 1932. Under ordinary conditions power consumption usually drifts to the yearly low around this time.

Consumption in all the major geographic regions showed increased gains over the corresponding week last year than were recorded in the previous week.

MidWest Utilities Negotiation Given Approval Of Court

Chicago, June 28—(AP) —Settlement of a Middle West Utilities Company claim against Lloyd's for $55,000 to satisfy losses from "dishonest acts of employes' " was approved today by U. S. District Judge Walter C. Lindley.

Receivers of the former Insull holding company has sued to collect on a $200,000 bonding policy protecting the company against dishonesty of employes. An agreement to settle for $55,000 was reached.

The employes involved were not named in the suit. Similar suits filed against other insurance companies named Samuel Insull, Sr., and Martin J. Insull as employes covered by the bonds.

The court also approved a contract betewen Middle West receivers and noteholders and the brokerage firm of Halsey Stuart & Co. The receivers therein admit indebtedness of Middle West to Halsey Stuart for $2,500,000; the brokers agree to return to the receivers one-half of the securities given them as additional bmargin within four months before the filing of a petition against Middle West.

The deadline for filing claims against Middle West was extended to Sept. 30 .

Steel Production Is On The Upgrade

New York, June 28—(AP)—Steel production has risen three points to 53 per cent of capacity, "Iron Age" said today. The upward swing, uninterrupted since the third week of March when operations touched 14 per cent, is one of the sharpest in the industry's history.

The first phase of the steel trade's recovery, said the publication, appears to be over.

"This view is supported by the fact that latterly many buyers have been taking steel in excess of their known requirements. Specifications against second quarter contracts have been unusually heavy. Buyers have been influenced to order out steel not merely on account of prospective price advances but because of uncertainty as to when producers will again make firm quotations.

"In some cases mills are accepting business at current prices for July shipment but others are taking forward business only with a saving clause protecting them against increases in costs."

TO ONE WHO PAINTED POPLARS

GREAT winds are your companions,
Great winds and strong birds black against the sun,
And clouds, and mists that rise,
And strident waters,
And the shoulders of great hills,
Stars too
And silent places:
These you have loved and challenged,
Whispered to, inveigled into speech,
So now your poplars riding out the wind
Shout their own challenge—
But the voice is yours.

—Ethel Louise Knox.

Careful Planning Saves Confusion

Careful household plans for the summer will save you much trouble and confusion when the days are the hottest.

First, get your wardrobe in shape. Decide what clothes you will need for work, dress-up occasions and for your vacation and then get them? Shopping is intolerable in hot weather.

If at all possible, lay plans for your vacation early. Then you won't be wiring frantically for reservations at the last minute. If the children are to be sent to a summer camp as soon as school is out, see that all final arrangements have been made with the camp. Their camp wardrobes should be planned and packed well in advance of the date of their departure. Study the camp schedule carefully and don't send them off with a lot of gadgets which they will be forbidden to use when they get there.

If the maid in your household is averse to hot weather better save yourself trouble by getting someone who doesn't mind the heat so much. There are plenty of competent maids who are as efficient in summer as in winter.

Hints for Homemakers

By Jane Rogers

SILVER, to look its best and be a credit to the hostess, must be gleaming and spotless. After polishing it carefully with a good silver polish and hot water, put it away in the individual cellophane envelopes, now on the market and made especially for holding silver. Tarnish is caused by chemical action when silver is exposed to air and moisture. These bags, which are made air-tight and moisture-proof, will prevent tarnishing and save a great deal of labor in the care of silverware.

CINE-MODES

WHITE FOR SUNTAN!

Mae Clark

By NEA Service

Hollywood—Evenings bring out the most glamorous gowns, these days. Diaphanous chiffons and organzas vie with rough crepes and satins and cotton evening things are by no means uncommon, either.

With one of the richest sunsets in Hollywood, Mae Clark picks a chalky white rough crepe for contrast. It has a tricky little fichu which gives her wide shoulders and then buttons down with ornamental gold buttons at each side. She wears gold earrings and a big gold bracelet with it, stunning with her rich tan color.

Starched yellow net, with brown accessories, made Betty Furness a summery picture, dancing at the Cocoanut Grove with Bruce Cabot. She had a ebrown cire ribbon belt, tied in the back, like a little girl's sash.

Hyacinth blue taffeta, with scarlet touches, was qarticularly becoming to Heather Angel, dining at the Beverly Hills Hotel.

Program at Saint James Thursday Eve

The ladies of the Golden Rule class spent a most enjoyable afternoon Tuesday, at the home of Mrs. Charles Breimer in the St. James Community. After the meeting refreshments were served by the Misses Roma Breimer and Ida Topper. It was decided that a program be given at St. James church Thursday night, June 29th, consisting of two humorous plays, "Mrs. Rishington's Rest Cure," and "A Yard of Argument." Several very good numbers have been secured including a piano solo by Mrs. Hazel Duffy, cornet solo by Ellsworth Burkett, reading by Mrs. Catherine LeFevre, duet by Merle Topper and Doris Johns, also a special treat for the audience in a number by the "Orkie Sisters."

An offering will be taken and pie and cake, a la mode, will be served in the basement following the program. Everyone is cordially invited.

Drew-Wolfe Wedding Today

This morning at 8:30 o'clock at St. Anne's Catholic church in North Dixon, the pastor, Rev. Father T. G. Flynn, officiated at the marriage of David Wolfe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Wolfe, and Miss Aileen Drew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Drew of Route 3. The best man was Bernard Wolfe and the maid of honor was Miss Mildred Drew.

As the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin sounded forth the bridal party approached the altar, where Father Flynn performed the impressive marriage ceremony with nuptial high mass, asssited by the choir, with Miss Eleanor Hennessey giving sveral violin solos.

The bride was beautifully gowned in white satin and lace, wearing a long lace veil held in place with a dainty coronet of orange blossoms. She carried bridal roses. The maid of honor wore a charming gown of pink triple sheer with jacket and hat and accessories in light blue. She carried a mixed bonquet.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was held at the home of the bride's parents for the relatives and intimate friends. The home was beautifully decorated with summer flowers.

After a short honeymoon, it is understood, Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe will make their home in Harmon. They are both estimate and popular young people whose many friends join in extending best wishes to them for happiness and prosperity.

SHEEP

By HELEN WELSHIMER

OFTEN at night
When I can't sleep
I lie in bed
And count white sheep.

I SEE them go over
A bright green stile.
I follow closely
Until afterwhile

THEY turn into people.
As soon as they do,
I lose all the calm
And the peace that I knew.

YOU see, I have learned
From my rural observing,
Watching sheep climb
Is much less unnerving

THAN trying to make
All the people I know
Follow the paths
That I want them to go!

COMPROMISES NEEDED AT LONDON PARLEY

A few weeks ago the leading world statesmen were discussing the London conference in terms of the MacDonald-Roosevelt remark—"We have got to make it succeed."

Today this fine sentence seems to have been forgotten, and the various delegates at London, our own included, are evidently willing to come to an international agreement only if they can do so without receding an inch from their respective national policies.

A short time ago they were telling us that agreement at London was a matter of the highest importance. Today they are acting as if the conference were some vast sort of poker game in which the big idea was to get all you could from the other fellow without giving up a thing yourself.

America talks of general tariff reductions that will stimulate world trade, but refuses even to discuss war debts and grows suddenly deaf when currency stablization is mentioned.

England also talks of reviving international trade, but clings to trade agreements like the Ottawa pact and the recent agreements with Denmark, Argentina and the Scandinavian countries. France likewise indulges in pious talk but clings to her gold standard, refuses to pay a dime on the war debts and hints at the establishment of a self-contained economic unit by France and her colonies. Japan prepares to discuss armament reductions by insisting that she be permitted to build a navy as strong as any on earth.

And so it goes, until one wonders whether the people of the world today have yet reached a state of mind in which any important international agreement is possible.

But it may be that the pessimism created by early activities at London is not entirely justified.

After all, the reasons for the calling of the conference are still as potent as they ever were. The spokesmen for the various countries know that a complete failure of the present discussions would be nothing short of a catastrophe. An attitude of complete intransigeance may go very well at the beginning, but it is quite possible that a general modification of it will be seen before the discussions are ended.

That, at any rate, is the way most of us prefer to look at it. The issues at stake at London are too important to be allowed to fall just because the various delegates are afraid of compromise.

A SQUARE DEAL FOR THE MAN WHO TOILS

Just why anyone should fear that the new industrial control bill will give organized labor too much of a break is something that is hard to understand.

To be sure, it has been asserted that under a certain interpretation of the law every factory in the land could be made into a closed shop. But it ought to be obvious that a closed shop of the kind contemplated here is quite unlike the closed shop as we have known it in the past; and, besides, if American employers can be frightened by the specter of a closed shop after all the other terrors they have faced in the past three years, their nerves must have suffered more than anyone has supposed.

The American laboring man needs a break of some kind very badly.

During the depression he has been most amazingly patient. It used to be said, back in the old boom days, that he would get rambunctious and start breaking things if the industrial machine ever slowed down. Ever since the 1929 stock market crash he has been disproving this prediction.

In the face of swiftly contracting wage scales and lengthening breadlines he has sat tight, willing to wait for the turning, ignoring the radical agitators who would have turned his predicament to their own advantage, displaying a quiet endurance and an inherent conservatism that have been nothing less than amazing.

By so doing he has given us every reason to expect that he will not abuse the privilege which the industrial control bill is going to bring him.

But aside from those considerations, there is another ground on which labor's new charter of power can be defended.

At this moment a shift in our whole form of government seems to be taking place; a shift which carries over into the industrial and financial fields those standards of freedom and democracy which we have always cherished in the political realm. An industrial law which sets up a series of labor-controlled organizations to share in the government of industry is no more than a logical part of that shift.

We have today a very fair chance to make our democracy more truly effective than it has been in a century. We cannot do it if we follow the lead of tories to whom organized labor is anathema.

The industrial control law is a good thing, not in spite of its concessions to organized labor but because of them.

Fashions in freaks change, the public taste being what it is, and just now Siamese twins are at a discount; people have seen enough of them.—Clyde Ingalls, circus sideshow manager.

THE TWYMITES

Story by HAL COCHRAN — Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

One of the little serpent men bowed low and then he bowed again. "We heard the magic flute call," he exclaimed. "That is why we're here.

"In danger all you lads must be. We have come to help you. Please tell me just what the trouble is. There may not be a thing to fear."

Wee Duncy answered, "You are right. We are really in an awful plight. I was the one who blew the flute and, gee, I am glad you came.

"A friend of ours is missing, now. We have to rescue her, somehow. Just think how frightened she must be. It really is a shame."

"Don't get excited," said the man "but tell us, plainly as you can, just where we'll find your little friend. Then we will know what to do."

"Her name is Dotty," Scouty cried. "A tree grabbed her and ran to hide. If you are going to fight the tree, we'll gladly help you."

"Ho, ho!" the serpent man began to laugh, loud and long. "Is that the only thing that's wrong? It must have been the crazy oak that's always pulling tricks.

"That tree is a nuisance. Yes, siree! It is just as mean as it can be. When we get through with it, it will be in an awful fix."

And then he shouted, "Come on, men! We are on our merry way again. Be sure and have your hatchets ready. We may have to fight.

"We'll chop the tree down, if we can." Then through the woods the whole bunch ran. "Oh, gee," wailed little Duncy, "I hope this turns out all right."

They found the tree, not far away, and Windy promptly cried, "Hurray! It still is holding Dotty. Hurry, please. Begin to chop!"

The serpent men all sailed right in and shortly one said, with a grin, "We're going to keep on hacking till we make the big tree drop."

(Dotty is rescued in the next story.)

VACATIONS and HEALTH

By Dr. ERNEST H. LINES
Eminent Authority and Chief Medical Director New York Life Insurance Company

EXERCISE AND REST

VACATION time is a period when many people whose daily work does not involve physical effort try to catch up on exercise. Some of them go about it in such a way that they do themselves more harm than good.

Choose some exercise that will keep you out in the open air and sunshine. Golf, tennis, swimming, baseball and hiking are beneficial in moderation. Don't try to play thirty-six holes of golf or go on a ten-mile hike the first few days of your vacation.

If unaccustomed to strenuous exercise, do not begin too vigorously. Exercise should leave one pleasantly fatigued, not exhausted. Persons who take little exercise during the winter, especially adults over forty, should be extremely careful to exercise only moderately.

Don't force yourself to the golf course or to the tennis court when you are already physically tired. Many of the sudden deaths of middle-aged men apparently in good health, during or immediately following a game of golf, show the danger of this. Exercise should be a recreation and a pleasure, not a duty to be performed irrespective of the condition of the body at the time. Avoid strenuous exercise during the heat of the day.

Sleep and Rest

"Early to bed and early to rise" is a good rule to follow the year round, and especially on your vacation. Get at least eight, and preferably nine, hours sleep every night.

The rooms in which you sleep should be well ventilated, particularly during the summer time. By getting plenty of sleep and breathing pure air you lessen the possibilities of exhaustion during excessively hot weather.

Go to a movie, read, or sit around and chat in the evening before retiring. Relax for at least a quarter hour before eating, and for at least an hour after meals. Don't go swimming for at least two hours after eating, or you may have an attack of muscle cramps or indigestion and drown.

Plenty of rest and relaxation is essential to getting the most out of your vacation. Banish business worries and get outdoors in the sunshine. Rebuild your mental and physical resources for the next year's work.

This is the seventh of a series of 12 articles on Vacations and Health. The eighth, on Swimming, will answer the questions:

1. If you are pushed into deep water and can't swim, what should you do? 2. Do good swimmers often drown? 3. What are cramps and how can they be prevented?

TALKING ABOUT the reputation of a cigarette—that's something new.

I know about reputation of people . . . reputation of some other things . . . and, come to think about it, I should say that CHESTERFIELD has an A-1 reputation.

You know, it seems to have real merit. To me, for a cigarette 'To Satisfy,' it certainly has to be made right; and then it has to taste right. I just don't like them strong . . . they just have to be mild.

CHESTERFIELD has what it takes to satisfy. That's what people say about it."

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—Physical casualties in the present Congress thus far have been comparatively light when it is considered what a terrific grind Senators and Representatives were subjected to during the three-month session just closed.

Three Senators were forced to place themselves under the care of physicians suffering from ailments directly or indirectly traceable to the rigorous special session. They were George of Georgia, Lewis of Illinois and Borah of Idaho.

House members also have felt the effects.

The changes in the membership of the seventy-third Congress since the election of November 8 last year have been few. And in each instance they have been just individual stories. No particular party issue or plan was seriously affected.

THE SHIFTING LINEUP—

Two of the four changes in the Senate were due to resignations. Cordell Hull of Tennessee gave up his seat to become dean of the Roosevelt cabinet with the portfolio of Secretary of State. Claude A. Swanson of Virginia resigned to become Secretary of the Navy.

Senators Walsh of Montana and Howell of Nebraska died.

Of the five House deaths, two—Kemp of Louisiana and Almon of Alabama—occurred since the session closed. In addition to the membership changes thus wrought, Jack Garner of Texas resigned to assume the Vice Presidency and Lewis Douglas of Arizona quit to become director of the budget.

The present Congress, despite the fact that the special session was one of the most difficult of any held in recent years, has a long while yet to run. The regular session of the seventy-third is not scheduled until January 3.

The last Congress —the seventy-second—saw 33 changes in membership from election time to final adjournment. Twenty-nine of these changes were caused by death.

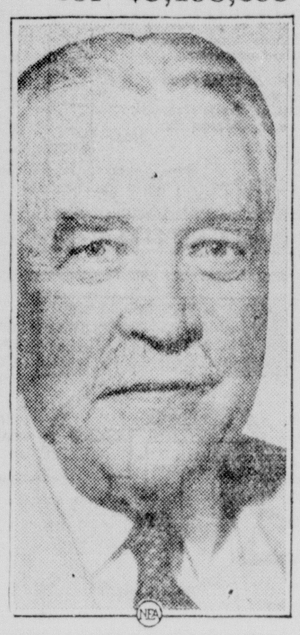

KEEPING TAB—

These congressional casualties always a matter of concern on Capitol Hill. The House employs its own physician to keep tab on the health of the members. He is a Navy doctor and is constantly experimenting to better conditions under which the Congressmen work.

Last session he appealed to the Speaker of the House to make things a bit easier for his charges. He warned that the pace was man-killing and should be slowed down.

In the Senate one of its own members—Copeland of New York—is the self-appointed guardian of his colleagues' health. "Doc" Copeland is constantly urging his colleagues to take care of themselves. He complains because no sunlight can reach the Senate chamber.

Director Sued for $3,158,855

Kenyon V Painter, above, Cleveland capitalist, has accepted judgment against him for $3,158,855 in a suit brought by the conservator of the defunct Union Trust Co. of Cleveland. A director of the bank, Mr Painter, was revealed as a borrower of this amount from it. He said he had borrowed to buy more bank stock to uphold its price.

Daily Health Talk

ELIMINATION

Adequate food, prevention of constipation, and proper elimination are the three most important factors in the promotion and conservation of health.

Thanks to extensie health education in recent years, the first two items are well appreciated by the laity. The importance of proper and adequate elimination, however, is not given the attention it deserves.

The important organs of elimination of the human body are the skin, the lungs, the kidneys and the large intestine. These organs excrete carbon dioxide, water, nitrogenous and inorganic as well as other waste elements.

Sometimes when one of these organs fails in the full performance of its work the elimination of certain wastes is taken over by the other organs.

Thus the skin, in addition to giving off water and heat, may also throw off certain waste blood constituents such as urea, which is normally excreted through the kidneys. However, the skin is not very effective in this respect. More important is the large bowel.

The colon, of course, stores and ultimately eliminates those food materials which have not been digested and absorbed. But in addition, it also eliminates certain substances which are passed into it from the body proper.

It has been established that the large intestine is the principal channel through which are eliminated those substances which, like iron, calcium and magnesium, are not readily soluble in water and which therefore cannot easily pass through the kidneys.

These observations throw a significant light on the problem of constipation and on the importance of regular and full bowel evacuation.

They also suggest certain possible hazards in the use of cathartics which irritate the large bowel. For it is proper to assume that the more normal the evacuation of fecal material, the more effective the large bowel will be in eliminating the other waste products.

ICE CREAM, ETC.—

The ice cream people have been passing up a big bet all these years . . . Jack Sharkey likes it . . . and he ought to . . . for ice cream helped to make him heavyweight champion of the world.

Away back in the days when Mister Sharkey of the Boston Sharkeys was just a plain sailor, he was assigned to shore duty at Newport Naval Station . . . between cruises of the U. S. S. South Carolina.

* * *

SAILORS AND PALS—

It happens that sailors not only despise all Marines but one company of sailors often entertains wholesome disrespect for the company of sailors barracked next door . . . good haters, those sailors . . . but in a pinch, of course, it was all Sailors against all Marines.

One afternoon Sharkey, who was regarded as chief of his company, sent a young and tender tar to the canteen for ice cream . . . on the way home with the cake of milk, this lad was set upon by Sailors of another company who happened to like ice cream, too . . . (I wonder if all Sailors like ice cream?)

* * *

ICE CREAM WARS—

Instead of ice cream, anyway Mister Sharkey's messenger brought back only a black eye . . . so Sharkey turned out the guard and marched away bent on battle.

Mister Sharkey's first pleasantry was "Who gloomed dis bloke for de ice cream?" . . . and he did not have to wait for a reply . . . out stepped a burly Barnacle Bill and smote him on the whiskers . . . to use Sharkey's own expression, "I got one on the lug" . . . and down he went.

Other Sailors joined the fun . . . why not a fight, as long as there was no ice cream? . . . Sharkey finally landed a roundhouse on his foe's jaw, which banged the man's head against a telephone pole. . . . Exenut all.

Afterward Jack learned that his first major battle had been with the middleweight champion of the fleet . . . and he started to think.

* * *

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Carl Hubbell won 12 and lost 9 for Beaumont in the Texas League in 1928 . . . the Giants paid $40,000 for him. . . . Today the New Yorkers are getting big returns for their investment, for Hubbel has developed into one of the National League's best riflemen. . . . Long pugilistic routes shouldn't bother Maxie Baer. . . . The Livermore walloper has engaged in two 20-round contests . . . one with Paulino Uzcudun and the other with King Levinsky. . . . Maxie is a long-distance talker as well as fighter. . . . Joe Crowley, the Yale gridder, recently married Betty Shearn Jones. . . She is a daughter of Tad Jones, former Bulldog mentor.

CLEVER HEAVIES TO BATTLE NEXT THURSDAY NIGHT

Soldatti And Cook Matched For Out Door Feature

Boxing fans of Dixon and vicinity will be given a rare treat Thursday evening at the Crawford Maples arena when two of the best amateur heavyweights of the central west will step into the ring in the feature bout of the program. Matchmaker Ed Hooker of the Dixon Athletic club announced today, the match between Arrio Soldatti of Rockford and Art Cook of Peoria. Both are Golden Glove champions from their respective cities and will meet for the first time.

Soldatti has been selected to go to Chicago next week with Billy Celebron of Rockford to appear in the Golden Glove show representing Rockford. He will meet Peoria's heavyweight ace at the Maple arena in his last battle before going to the Windy City to prepare for the Chicago show. Tony Sutton of Rock Island, who was being sought to oppose Soldatti here Thursday night, has been suspended by the A. A. U. and Matchmaker Hooker is jubilant over his being able to bring the two heavyweights from Rockford and Peoria together at the Thursday night show for the title bout.

Little For Cubs And Sox Fans To Argue About Now

CARNERA MONEY FORCES ODDS ON FIGHT TO 11-10

Big Italian May Enter Ring Against Champ At Even Money

New York, June 28—(AP)—For the first time in boxing history, a heavyweight champion may enter the ring a short-ender in the betting when Jack Sharkey ducks under the ropes in Madison Square Garden's Long Island bowl tomorrow night for his 15-round title defense against Primo Carnera.

Today champion Jack was a bare 6 to 5 choice with some quotations as low as 11 to 10 and there were strong indications Carnera would be no worse than an even money bet, and perhaps a slight favorite, by fight time.

Just what has caused the rush of money on the mammoth Italian's chances had even the bookmakers mystified, but it seemed possible Carnera's knockout victory over ill-fated Ernie Schaaf, as well as Sharkey's inactivity, may have played an important part. Schaaf knocked out in the 13th round of his match with Carnera at the Garden Feb. 10, died of inflammation of the brain four days later. The outcome of that match, apparently has led the customers to tag Carnera a dangerous puncher.

Swing Hardly Justified

As a matter of fact there has been nothing in the big Italian's previous bouts with first-class heavyweights to indicate any such thing. Sharkey himself had few if any, uncomfortable moments when he outpointed Primo at Ebbets Field two years ago and a long list of other heavyweights, including King Levinsky, Jimmy Maloney, Paulino Uzcudun, Stanley Poreda, Hans Birkie, Larry Gains and Art Lasky have traveled the full ten-round route against him. Gains Poreda and Maloney all hold decisions over him at that distance.

On the face of things, the swing toward Carnera hardly seems justified. Sharkey has trained faithfully and well. No longer quite as fast as he was a few years ago, the Boston gob nevertheless still is one of the world's smartest glove-swingers, a durable hard-punching veteran who, on his good nights, is all but unbeatable.

Sharkey Confident

He will be forced to concede Carnera tremendous physical advantages—60 pounds in weight, many inches in height and reach—but he has beaten the Italian before and probably is fully convinced he can repeat.

Both principals wound up intensive preparations for the match yesterday—Sharkey at Orangeburg New York, and Carnera at Pompton Lakes, N. J. Outwardly at least both seemed to have reached prime condition with little or nothing to choose between them on that score.

The champion, who arrived in New York last evening, expects to tip the scales at 204 pounds for the official weighing-in ceremonies at 1 P .M. (EST) Thursday. Carnera probably will weigh 264 pounds.

Meanwhile ticket sales were going slowly but the Garden was counting upon just such another last minute rush as sent the Sharkey-Max Schmeling bout well over the financial top last summer. With fair weather, William F. Carey, president of the Garden, believed nearly 60,000 fans would contribute to a gate in the neighborhood of $275,000.

The opening preliminary on the card is scheduled for 7 P. M. (EST) with the main bout between 8:30 and 9 P. M.

CARDINALS FIND GOING TOUGH IN EASTERN CITIES

Boston Twirler Sets Them Down With A Mere Six Hits

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Second division clubs of the major leagues have been dipping their thumbs into the pennant pie in the last week or so with results costly to two leading contenders.

First it was the Bostor Red Sox and St. Louis Browns wno ripped the Yankees loose from the American League lead and now the Boston Braves appear to have taken up where the last-place Phillies left off on the job of knocking the Cardinals deeper into second place in the National.

Outslugged by the Phillies in three out of four games, the Cards went to Boston yesterday and ran into an unbeatable brand of pitching that gave them another defeat. Leo Mangum, who hadn't started a game since early May blanked them with six hits, to beat Bill Walker in a brilliant mound duel, 1 to 0. Walker granted only three hits and neither flinger gave a pass.

Error Figured In Run

The Boston run resulted from Leo Durocher's error on Hal Lee's hard grounder in the fifth. Al Spohrer sent Lee to third with a single and the latter scored on a force play.

The defeat put St. Louis 3 1-2 games behind the New York Giants, whose doubleheader with Pittsburgh was halted by threatening weather. Although Boston recorded its sixth victory in seven games, the Brooklyn Dodgers remained in a virtual tie for fifth place with the Braves by pasting the Cincinnat Reds 11 to 2. The Dodgers scored ten runs off Si Johnson and Ray Kolp in the first three innings. The Phillies and Chicago were rained out.

The Washington Senators lost half of their American League lead over the Yankees when the ninth-inning wildness of Bill McAfee and Jack Russell gave Cleveland two runs and a 7-6 decision, while the Yanks nosed out Detroit's Tigers 9-8.

Walks Beat Senators

The two Washington flingers gave four walks in the ninth and a sacrifice and a single by Harley Boss gave the Indians the winning runs. The Yanks unloaded a patch of homers at the right moments in Detroit, with Tony Lazzeri, Ben Chapman and Earl Combs hitting them but they barely lasted to win after John Stone clouted one with two on base in the ninth.

Jimmie Foxx's 17th homer which tied him with Lou Gehrig for the major league lead, was not enough to win for Philadelphia as the Chicago White Sox took advantage of Merritt Cain's wildness to score five runs in the second inning and beat the Athletics 8 to 3. The Boston Red Sox smacked Sam Gray and Ed Wells for four runs in the eighth and a 5 to 4 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

To Review Cases Of 300,000 Vets

Washington, June 27—(AP)—A general review of upwards of 300,000 cases of veterans allowed compensation claims was announced today by the Veterans' Administration.

The administration took the action as a step toward carrying out the compromise enacted in the closing hours of Congress whose purpose was to liberalize prevous presidential regulation for veterans slashes.

COMPTON NEWS

By Leslie G. Archer

Compton — The Compton baseball team, by showing superior teamwork, won from the Mendota Giants by a score of 8 to 2 Sunday afternoon at the local diamond. This brings Manager Webber's rating to eight wins, and no losses, to lead the Illinois Valley League. A. Chaon pitched his usual good game, by allowing five hits, which included a home run by Phalen of the Giants, in the eighth frame. W. Webber who is stationed at first base, when Bohart, the regular first sacker is occupying a shortstop berth, showed good form by knocking out three hits, good for two runs, one of his hits was a homer, besides taking care of his position in creditable manner. Carl Walter also showed hs talent by smashing out two runs, from three hits, at five times to bat. Next Sunday Manger Webber takes his team to meet the Amboy Shamrocks, in the final game of the first round of the circuit.

A representative of the Summer Outing Department of the United Charities of Chicago called in this vicinity last week, desirous of placing children from the tenement districts in country homes for two weeks duration. Everyday Religion

NO MORE CORNERS

(By Dr. Joseph Fort Newton.)

Once I preached in "the pork-pie church" in Leicester, so named for its circular shape, and in honor of the famous pork-pies shipped all over England. The building made an odd impression upon me, looking down from the pulpit, stuck like the nest of a swallow on the wall. It made me think of a railway round-house, but everyone in it could see and hear.

An architect has been telling us that in the future all houses will be circular in shape, like the "oval library" of Pitt, which so irritated Gladstone. Square houses are neither sanitary nor psychological, he tells us. Angles and corners are fatiguing to the eye and distracting to the mind. They develop complexes and make people queer.

The "old rambling houses" will have to go; everything must be open, obvious, even austere, like an operating room in a hospital. No more cozy corners snug nooks, or romantic shadows; and that is a symbol, he said, of what life will be in days ahead. What a pity, because if it makes us more healthy of body, it will leave us hard and hungry of soul.

Maybe we were wrong in the past in leaving certain corners of life shrouded in secrecy. They collected dirt. But the psychologists are hopelessly absurd in thinking that life can be made circular and easy, all angles knocked off, and all haunting irrationalities left out. It cannot be done; if we drive mystery out of the door it will climb in the window.

Already too much beauty, color and romance have vanished from life, leaving it dull and drab. No one desires a circular life —going round and round like a squirrel in a cage. As for planned and psychological cities, how horrible — We love better the crooked, crazy streets of London or Boston, if only because they lead us to a perfectly illgical Cathedral.

No, some of us still love beautiful, irrational things, like old gabled houses, the stories of Scott, the dark unrest in the music of Beethoven and our hearts are deeply touched by the "complexes" of awe, wonder, revrence, and romance. If others think otherwise, to adapt the famous words of Jos. Bowley, let them "go forth into the dry air of Reason — and stay there!"

CHANUTE FIELD SEEMS DOOMED BY "NEW DEAL"

The Air Corps Technical School There To Be Abandoned

Washington, June 28—(AP)—Despite the optimism of Illinois congressional leaders, often expressed during the special session of Congress, the Air Corps Technical School at Chanute Field, near Rantoul, Ill., today appeared doomed for abandonment.

War Department officials left that impression with the announcement that the camp had not only been omitted for "specific reasons", from the Army construction program recommended to the Public Works Administrator, but also that there would be no additional funds with which the development of Chanute Field, stopped abruptly last March, could be resumed.

To specific questions whether the Chanute personnel and facilities would be transferred either to Fair Field, near Dayton, O., or Scott Field, at Belleville, Ill., officials were non-committal.

They did, however, point out that only $46,111 has been recommended for allotment to Fair Field, while $1,459,800 has been recommended for Scott Field. They pointed out that $36,000 of the Belleville total was set aside for the erection of a "photo building", while almost a million dollars had been recommended for the construction of additional personnel quarters there.

Read Between Lines

"It shouldn't be so difficult to read between the lines," suggested one of the officials. He added that the War Department has never made any "particular secret" of its disapproval of the Chanute location. The Air Corps has long insisted that the facilities of the Rantoul unit should be moved elsewhere "to promote efficiency."

War Department officials placed considerable emphasis on the fact that Scott Field has been designated to receive $1,459,800 of Illinois' recommended $1,880,957. This southern Illinois camp, apparently slated for abandonment a few months ago when lighter-than-air craft went under a shadow, has suddenly taken on new importance.

Without being too specific, War Department officials point out that the recommended allotment for Scott Field is to be spent as follows:

Barracks $271,000; non-commissioned officers' quarters $172,000; officers' quarters $489,000; hangar $131,000; headquarters and operating building $80,000; photo building $36,000; paved aprons $40,000; quartermaster warehouse, $80,000; quartermaster maintanence shop, $30,000; quartermaster's garages $50,000; railroad spur $10,000; telephone construction $13,000; reconditioning roads, walks and utilities $50,000; reconditioning railroad bridges and sewage system $7,000.

Turbulent Existence

Chanute Field has had a comparatively turbulent existence.

Established during the World War, its congressional friends have been continuously fighting to prevent the War Department's moving it to Fair Field or some other camp.

In July, 1932, the battle to insure its permanence was apparently won when a bill appropriating $557,000 for the construction of solid housing was passed by Congress, and on March 4, 1933, Chanute's friends found themselves with authorization to construct permanent quarters—but no money to pay for such work.

While Congressional approval is necessary before Chanute can be abandoned, there is nothing to prevent the War Department transferring the personnel and equipment.

Inasmuch as Illinois would retain the Air Corps Technical School, in case it were to be moved from Rantoul to Belleville, Department officials saw but little difficulty in winning the needed approval.

While Rep. D. C. Dobbins, Democrat of Champaign, Ill., has fought a determined battle to keep it open, Rep. Ed M. Schaefer, Democrat of Belleville, has been as interested in moving its personnel to Belleville. Chanute is in Dobbins' district.

Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, Democrat of Chicago, has expressed himself as being little concerned over the fate of Chanute; Senator William H. Dieterich, Democrat of Beardstown, Ill., is non-committal.

Other Illinois Units

Other Illinois military units which would benefit under the War Department's recommended program, are:

Rock Island Arsenal: Non-commissioned officers' quarters $17,000; officers' quarters $30,000; telephone construction $1,000; reconditioning of office building $10,000. Total $58,000.

Chicago depot: Reconditioning of drainage system, skylights, and sprinkler system $24,500.

Savanna ordnance depot: Magazine and storehouse construction, $290,000.

Fort Sheridan: Reconditioning of roads, reserve fences, electrical system and sewage $31,400.

Rock Island National Cemetery: New lodge $10,000; repairs to roads, fences, and rostrum $500. Total, $10,500.

Camp Butler, Springfield: Road repairs $2,500; Improvements $650; water supply $3,107. Total $6,257.

Quincy National Cemetery: Repairs to roads $500.

GERMAN PEOPLE MOURN SIGNING AT VERSAILLES

The Entire Nation Is Today Observing Anniversary

Berlin, June 28—(AP)—All Germany went into mourning today in protest against the Treaty of Versailles, signed 14 years ago by representatives of the allied powers and Germany.

The new regime of Chancellor Hitler, which moved closer to complete domination of the national scene with the dissolution of the Nationalist party and its affiliates, is responsible for the first observance of the anniversary.

Flags were flown at half staff from churches public buildings and homes. Demonstrations were planned all over the country and the Berlin protestant cathedral announced a special prayer service on the theme, "God liberate us."

All newspapers devoted editorials to the pact, which provided for changes in Germany's boundaries on the south, north, and east; for the ceding of all Germany's oversea colonies to the principal allied powers, and for the limiting of Germany's military, naval and air forces, among other matters.

Chancellor Hitler's Voelkischer Beobachter asserted: "We now realize that we were misguided through President Wilson's fourteen points, extended to Germany as a bait for accepting the terms of this devastating truce."

Asserting further that the Nazi national revolution marked the "turning point of the Versailles era," the newspaper said final liberation required new, individual sacrifices.

TEXTILE LABOR DEMANDS MORE LIBERAL WAGES

Shorter Hours Are Also Desired In Code Being Written

Washington, June 28—(AP)—Organized labor, having already tasted victory on important points of the competition code formulated by the cotton textile industry, concentrated today on demand for a $14 weekly minimum wage.

The case reached the open with Thomas F McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers of America, making the recommendation at the second day of hearings under the industrial control act at the Commerce Department.

Addressing Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the law, and now and again turning to the plentiful audience, the labor executive also advocated that hours of labor in the industry be restricted to 35 and that there be no differential in the minimum wage accorded for northern and southern mills.

The code as drafted provides for minimum wages of $11 a week for northern mills, $10 a week for southern mills, and a 40 hour week with machinery operation restricted to two shifts daily.

Washington, June 28—(AP)—Labor today demanded more liberal wages and working hours than cotton textile operators proposed under the industrial recovery law.

Led by William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, the workers chieftains marshalled for Hugh S. Johnson, Industrial Administration, their reasons for contendng $10 in the south and $11 in the north is too low a weekly minimum wage for cotton mills and 40 hours too long a work week.

Spurring the labor spokesmen was a determination to set the highest possible standard for workers in this initial code on which other industries may pattern plans for aiding employment and business through the administration's recovery act.

Desire Agreement

But underlying their efforts to change figures and language in the operators' plan was an earnest desire to cooperate toward a successful working agreement.

Already labor had scored with the appointment by Johnson of a committee to investigate the "stretch-out system" in cotton mills, lest decreased working hours be offset by an increased machine load for the individual workers, thereby nullifying the announced intention of greater employment.

Green's plea before the recovery administration was forecast by himself to include a demand that before the textile code gains the force of law through administration approval it should be modified to provide a minimum wage of not less than $14.40 and a work week not exceeding 32 hours. John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, was of like mind.

$12 Weekly Minimum

For the more directly affected United Federation of Textile Workers, Thomas F. McMahon promised strenuous opposition to "any minimum wage below $12 a week" and indicated a formal suggestion of $14.

The labor forces were silent when representatives of textile operators predicted more than 100,000 additional men would be employed by their recommended code. But they were gratified at the few interjections of Johnson, most pointing directly at the labor issue.

FRANCE MAY BE FORCED TO DROP GOLD STANDARD

Paris Experts are Agreed That Battle Of The Franc Is Lost

Paris, June 28—(AP)—Financial experts said today that the battle of the franc is lost and it is only a question of time until France will be obligated to devalorize.

Telephone conversations between Premier Daladier and Finance Minister Bonnet, who is at the London conference, are said to have revealed that hope has been abandoned of Great Britain's stabilizing with Europe.

Economic forces either will push France off gold or compel the cheapening of the franc, probably a fourth or a fifth, to meet dollar competition, financial experts said.

"It is wiser to act now," declared a source conversant with the views of the government, "but the public must be educated."

Nothing except the "miracle" of high dollar stabilization can save the franc, it was said, because diminution of foreign trade will henceforth be accelerated as tax receipts diminsh and the budget deficit grows, compelling the government to inflate to get money, as the treasury already is almost empty.

If Parliament and the people were awake to the danger, devalorization could be effected soon with less suffering, it was said, but the country is so thoroughly imbued with the idea of maintaining gold to make the franc safe, tha the government would be immediately overthrown if its value were changed now.

Marcel Regnier, reporter for the finance committee, yesterday warned the Senate of the "gravity" of the French financial situation. Former Premier Joseph Caillaux predicted a "collapse of the public finances" if an additional burden were imposed through a too large aid to agriculture.

AWAIT MOLEY'S WORD

London, June 28—(AP)—The world economic conference radiated the impression this morning that it was waiting on the pleasure of Assistant Secretary of State Raymond Moley, who popularly was supposed to be bringing from his chief in Washington medicine to cure many ills of the great assemblage.

The lobbies were throbbing with steady talk of the man who has been heralded in the press as a mysterious but all-knowing "head of Roosevelt's brain trust."

Few men have entered London with such great expectations built on their advent.

The report that Moley was visiting the conference headquarters at noon for a conference with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, chairman of the parley, and Secretary of State Cordell Hull, chairman of the American delegation, sent a thrill through the building.

Professor Moley did not appear, however, and the British Premier said that he had no appointment.

The Assistant Secretary was busy from early morning hours conferring with his colleagues in the American group and feeling out the situation.

Bureau To Meet

Many delegates anticipated that some of his views might be made known in a private meeting of the conference bureau which MacDonald called for late in the afternoon today.

If Moley had concrete proposals or suggestions for removing some of the many controversies which are blocking the progress of the conference, they were carefully guarded. Whatever he said he said in private, and the American delegation remained similarly silent.

Almost coincident with the arrival of the Assistant Secretary of State there was an important development. It was learned that the American and British delegations already had held one private meeting together and planned another for today.

Details of what took place in the secret session between the two great English-speaking delegations were not divulged, but an authoritative source said this much was true:

To Work Together

The British and the Americans decided to work hand-in-hand so far as possible. Their interests are: in the main, mutual, it was said, and moreover, they feel that the success of the conference largely rests on their shoulders and if they stand together success will be more likely.

Approval of Senator Key Pittman's gold resolution which provides, among other things, for the withdrawal of the yellow metal from circulation and reducing the gold coverage of central banks to 25 per cent, was formally reported this morning by the sub-committee which has been studying it.

This sub-committee reported its findings to its parent commission which now will consider the matter.

The sub-committee made some slight alterations in the phraseology of the Pittman resolution, the most important being to insert the statement that such monetary changes "must not be taken as an excuse for unduly building up a larger super-structure of notes and credits."

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BARRETT COLVIN, back in New York after years abroad, falls in love with 20-year-old ELINOR STAFFORD. Barrett is 35, wealthy, and has made a name for himself as an archeologist.

LIDA STAFFORD, Elinor's beautiful mother, has kept the girl in the background, wanting attention for herself. Lida is carrying on a flirtation with VANCE CARTER and constantly scheming to keep in the good graces of rich MISS ELLA SEXTON, her husband's aunt, in order to inherit a share of the Sexton fortune.

Years before Barrett shielded his half-sister, MARCIA, when a youthful romance ended disastrously. Marcia had a son whom Barrett adopted. She tells Barrett that if her husband ever learns of the affair he will never forgive her.

Elinor's mother goes to Miami for three weeks. When she returns she overhears Barrett talking to Elinor. Realizing he is about to ask the girl to marry him, Lida interrupts. Cleverly she leads Barrett to believe that Elinor does not care for him, has only been flirting with him.

He leaves and days pass in which Elinor has no word from him. She is heart-broken. Then, calling at her aunt's, she sees him again.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XV

FOR a moment Elinor closed her eyes, feeling sick and dizzy. Then, pulling herself together, she heard as if from afar the butler's voice booming out, "Mrs. Stafford, Miss Stafford—"

She never knew how she entered the dimly-lit drawing room, never knew what she said. Lida saw Barrett Colvin turn lemon white, the pallor of men who are hard-tanned. After she had kissed Miss Ella with a rather exaggerated tenderness she held out her hand to him. Elinor nodded without looking at Barrett and sank to a chair. There was a faintly ironic smile upon Lida's lips. Really the child was reacting to love as the Victorians did!

Miss Ella sat erect. In her day "ladies" had not reclined on chairs. Her dimmed, yet keen eyes were fixed first on Barrett and then on Elinor. His manner toward the girl had changed, she saw. It was quite obvious. What had made Barrett change? What had he discovered about Elinor to make him turn away in this abrupt fashion? The Colvin men were gentlemen. Not one of them would show a young woman attentions and then cease without a reason. There must have been a reason. What could it have been? Miss Ella trusted Barrett Colvin's judgment as she trusted that of no one else. It looked as though again her will must be changed.

Barrett did not like Lida either. Miss Ella saw how he stiffened as Lida appealed prettily for his opinion about this and that.

There was a lull in the talk and Barrett moved suddenly. Miss Ella did not want him to go so soon. A few more moments and she would be entirely certain of the truth. She would be able to read it in his honest face.

"Have you seen Bessie recently?" Miss Ella asked Lida. Barrett was sitting back now, having missed that possible moment for exit.

"Oh, yes," Lida laughed. "I went to see her the other morning. Dear Bessie—a perfectly impossible creature came to the house asking for help on such a flimsy pretext. The woman was simply reeking of liquor and Bessie gave her two dollars. I remonstrated—I felt I must—and Bessie said that in the woman's place she thought she might drink too—"

Miss Ella's lips grew tight. "I am surprised at Bessie!" she said.

* * *

ELINOR'S color rose for the first time. She resented the tale which, she knew, had been told to discredit Bessie Thrope. For a moment her ardent championship of those she loved made her forget Barrett Colvin.

"Aunt Bessie's very generous and kind. She can't bear suffering!" Elinor put in and not quite steadily.

"It is better to remember that 'charity begins at home'," Miss Ella pointed out rebukingly. "The careful use of money to guard the peace and safety of those at home is a quality I applaud, not the indulgence of giving that which is not one's own to give, under sentimental impulse!"

"It's no wonder dear Bessie never has a cent," Lida murmured. "She throws money about in the most insane way! Poor dear, she admits she never can learn how to manage!"

Lida's widely opened eyes seemed completely frank, completely innocent. She was complimenting herself upon having said that rather well. She had spoken Bessie's name with affection. She had smiled indulgently over Bessie's foibles while she divulged the one failing Miss Ella would never pardon. The "worthy poor" were those Miss Ella helped; not those who "reeked of strong drink."

Elinor said hotly, "I think Aunt Bessie manages wonderfully!" No one answered. She remembered Barrett then and the color left her cheeks as she stared down at her twisting hands.

"Not one of them is worthy of my trust!" thought Miss Ella.

Barrett had risen but Miss Ella waved him back to his chair. "Just a moment, Barrett," she said inflexibly. "I have a question to put to you before you leave and, if you like, you may smoke."

That might quiet him. It was unfortunate that gentlemen so often depended upon the sedative gained from the unhealthy habit.

"I'll make one cigaret the measure of my stay," he said, as inflexibly as she had.

* * *

SHE would ask him whether or not he thought her taxes excessive, Miss Ella decided, as he drew forth his cigaret case. That would seem a convincing question. Then—horror gathering in her eyes—she saw him holding the open cigaret case toward Lida.

"I don't smoke, Mr. Colvin," Lida said softly. He remembered that she had smoked while Elinor telephoned the news of her mother's arrival home. He had stared at the smoke of her cigaret without knowing he saw it, but now he remembered. He felt he was not showing surprise but Miss Ella saw the blankness of his face and read it correctly.

Her heart grew hot with anger. They were deceiving her! But she would not be duped as Barrett's father had been.

He turned then, still holding the open case, to Elinor. Flushing, she took a cigaret. She felt that she had to, that she must say, as she did, "I know you don't like women's smoking, Aunt Ella, but I like less—women's lying!"

Barrett held his lighter to Elinor's cigaret, hands shaking so that he was shamed. Her hands, too, had shaken. Perhaps that tremor was made to order so that he, an older man, should be relieved of consciousness.

Miss Ella boomed in a voice strong but quavering. "I am shocked! I am deeply shocked! To think that you, Lida, permit this!"

Barrett stiffened, then looked, amazed, at Miss Ella.

Falteringly Lida muttered excuses. She had "little influence over Elinor," she said. She had done everything to dissuade her from the unpleasant habit. Because—for one thing, she said (remembering Barrett), Elinor was too young to smoke.

Miss Ella's eyes rested upon Lida's right index finger, the inside of which was touched with a yellow stain. Lida's blond skin made a blotter and the nicotine proved Lida's latest deception.

* * *

THE old woman smiled the smile that the family feared. She turned with the same expression to Barrett and the smile changed to one of tremulous, affectionate gratitude. Her old eyes filled with tears. He had served her well and he would be rewarded. No one would know how well he would be rewarded until she was gone! He managed money as Bessie and Jim could not; he told the truth while Lida and Elinor lied. He was fitted to be that which he should be—her sole heir.

No one should say that she had been duped by clumsy tricks or fooled by lies. Lies!

She rang the bell that was by her side on a low table. "Craven," she said smoothly when he appeared, "tell Miss Smythe to ask Mr. Grotner to come to see me this afternoon at five, promptly at five. That will be all, Craven!" she ended and sat back.

The butler disappeared, his face a mask, but Lida had shown her emotion. She smiled forcedly and her eyes held fear. Mr. Grotner was Miss Ella's attorney. It could only mean that once more Miss Ella was going to change her will.

Barrett, who had started it all, stood up. He bowed above Miss Ella's hand, murmuring something about having to be on his way. He gave one glance to Elinor at leaving, sick with longing, and trying to despise her.

"I am very glad that Mr. Barrett Colvin was here when you came," said Miss Ella with emphasis.

Lida moistened her lips which were threatening to crack on her forced smile. When she had Elinor alone—! The little fool! What had she done by that insane gesture? "I could strangle you—bare-handed!" Lida thought.

And Barrett Colvin knew what he had done, she reasoned. He must know Miss Ella's feeling about women who smoked. Probably he had planned the affair deliberately and maliciously for the good of some charity he wanted her to include in her will.

"We must be going, dear Aunt Ella!" Lida murmured. She could not keep it up much longer—this restraint.

Miss Ella merely nodded and turned a cool, cool cheek for Lida's kiss.

HALF OF HORNER PROGRAM IS PUT IN LEGISLATION

Two Big Questions Before Adjournment Of Assembly

Springfield, Ill., June 28—(AP)—Half the program of special legislation asked by Governor Horner early in June already has reached his desk.

Awaiting his signature are the sale tax, which will probably be signed today, the $40,000,000 non-referendum bond issue for the Chicago schools, the $100,000,000 non-referendum bond issue for the Chicago Sanitary District, and the housing bills.

Two of the five insurance bills sought by the Governor were passed by the Senate yesterday and are before him for approval.

Except for three more insurance bills and possible concurrence in the House amendments to the Tax Commission and minimum wage bills, the Senate can spend the next day or two in working on the last three appropriations and secondary matters.

Two Big Questions

The big questions between now and final adjournment, which is expected tomorrow night at the earliest, concern the Tax Commission and minimum wage bills which may get stalled in the partizan battle-ground of the House of Representatives.

The House has also to concur in a minor Senate amendment to the Governor's utility bill.

The Governor's program has occupied the attention of legislators along with the all-important appropriation bills, most of which have also been passed, during the past few weeks.

The housing bills awaiting the Governor's signature permit the formation of corporations which can avail themselves of federal financial aid in building homes for low salaried persons. It has a two-fold purpose—slum erdication and employment.

Increased Powers

The Governor's utility bill strengthens the Illinois Commerce Commission and is designed not only to make it easier for that body to reduce rates but also gives the state control over utility holding companies.

Modeled after the New York law the minimum wage bill for women and minors meets the suggestion of President Roosevelt for such legislation.

Designed to help farmers and owners of small homes, the modified mortgage moratorium bill was defeated in the Senate when it failed to get a majority vote. Consideration was postponed to keep the bill alive.

The Sunderland bill legalizing and licensing dog racing also passed.

Annual Convention Of Moose Is Open

In the annual election of officers Dr. William Buehler, Chicago, was named Vice Supreme Dictator, and Malcolm R. Giles, Aurora, Supreme Secretary, A. J. Sartori, Tocoma, Wash., was elected Supreme Dictator.

OBITUARY

Born October 2, 1863, Minnie Pollock Lahman was in her seventieth year when a brief fatal illness ended her earthly life, June 18, 1933. Attacked by an especially virulent streptococcus infection of the throat the middle of last week, no one appreciated the seriousness of the ailment until too late. Sunday morning, while friends worshipped in church, and while her son and his family were on their way to Massachusetts by auto, knowing nothing of her illness, her tired body went quietly to sleep.

Minnie May Pollock was born near Forreston, Ill., the second of three children of Thomas Caldwell and Elizabeth Carnahan Pollock. When she was a small child, her parents moved to a farm near the LaFayette Woods, Ogle County, where they lived for several years, moving then to the village of Ashton. There she graduated from high school and followed in the footsteps of a God-fearing father and mother and a long line of Scotch-Irish Presbyterian forebears and became a member of the Presbyterian church.

Possessed of ambition and intellectual curiosity, she taught in rural schools near Ashton for several years and continued her education at Dixon College, where she was a member of the first class to enter that institution and at Northwestern (now North Central) College at Naperville. Her last teaching assignment was for a period of three years in the city schools of Columbus, Nebraska, the home of her brother, Charles Pollock. Called home by the illness of her mother, she gave up teaching and assumed various home and business duties with which all the rest of her life were filled.

As the culmination of an acquaintance begun in a business transaction at the Franklin Grove Tile Factory, she was married on March 1, 1894, to Fremont D. Lahman of Franklin Grove and came to reside on the farm east of town where both she and her husband lived until their deaths Mr. Lahman preceding her six years ago.

To this union was born one son, Carroll Pollock Lahman, professor of speech at Western State Teachers College, Kalamazoo, Michigan, who with his wife and two children, survive. Left with them to mourn her pasing are her brother, L. C. Pollock of Okahoma City, Okla., and his family, and many more distant relatives.

Possessed of rare business ability Mrs. Lahman for years looked after extensive agricultural interests, with insight and vigor Holding for herself the highest standards of honesty and fairness, she insisted that those with whom she dealt should meet them also. In addition to painstaking discharge of her duties at home, she found time to teach for a number of years a class in the local Presbyterian Sunday School, and throughout her married life she was an active and consecrated worker in the W. C. T. U. For many years she was the president of the Franklin Grove Union and at times held high offices in the county organization. Believing that temperance education should be coupled with consistent political action, she was a member of the Prohibition Party.

With her interest in the church and in the temperance cause went a consuming hatred of war and love of peace At no slight personal cost, she held fast to her beliefs during the World War and lived to see most informed people come to a realization that war settled nothing and unleashed men's worst passions to curse the world ever since.

Courageous, clear-visioned, devoted to civic betterment, Mrs. Lahman possessed a sensitive artistic temperament. As a young woman she sang extensively, and her home was hung with numerous lovely oil paintings of her own creation. Two years ago, she took a seven weeks' trip though the British Isles and to France and returned with a host of happy memories which she treasured till her death.

The funeral was held at the Franklin Grove Presbyterian church Theursday afternoon, with interment in the Franklin Grove Cemetery. The Rev. R. L. McWhirter of Decatur, former local pastor, was in charge of the service speaking from Proverbs 31 on "The Virtuous Woman." A mixed quartet consisting of Mrs. Ira Buck, Miss Lucille Buck and Messrs. Earl and Oliver Buck sang "Faith of Our Mothers" and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," accompanied by Mrs. Medric Hussey. John Charters of Ashton played an organ procéssional, "Consoation" by Mendelssohn' and as recessional, Chopin's "Funeral March." Pallbearers were former neighbors and long-time friends: J. C. Griffith and George Garrett of Ashton, Raymond Hood, Wm. F. Miller, John Mong and Willis Reigle of Franklin Grove.
